

PLAN COMPLETED FOR CORN EXHIBIT

Wednesday Will be Entry Day and Hundreds of Farmers are Expecting to Compete.

MUSIC AND ENTERTAINMENT

Prof. G. I. Christie Will Speak at Majestic Theater Thursday Night—J. S. Helm to be Judge.

Final preparations are being made today for the first annual Jackson County Corn Show which will be held at the Buhner Garage, South Chestnut street, beginning Wednesday and continuing until Saturday. This promises to be an event of county wide interest and the early indications point to a large entry list. Farmers in all townships are making inquiries about the display, the premiums offered and when the prize winners will be announced.

The garage will be converted into a display room Wednesday. Mr. Buhner will move the automobiles on the floor so that all the entries can be accommodated and if necessary some of the machines will be taken to other places while the show is in progress.

Wednesday will be entry day and as early as tomorrow it is expected that the corn will begin to reach the city. Hundreds of entries will be made in the show, according to the reports of County Agent A. D. Cobb, who is in charge of the arrangements. His estimates are based upon the reports he has received from farmers in the several townships throughout the county. It is urged that all entries be made before Wednesday afternoon so that they can be arranged according to their classes.

Thursday will be judging day and the awarding of the prizes will require most of the day. The judge will be Joseph S. Helm, of Richmond, a corn judge of national reputation. Each entry will be designated by number and the farmer will be given a duplicate so he may claim the corn after the show closes.

On Thursday night Prof. G. I. Christie, head of the agricultural department of Purdue University, will give an address at the Majestic Theater. His subject will be of particular interest to farmers and as many as can arrange to do so are urged to attend this meeting. Mr. Christie expected to speak here Friday night until a few days ago when he discovered that he had had another engagement on that night in Northern Indiana for more than a year.

On Friday judging classes under the direction of County Agent Cobb and Judge Helms will be held at the garage. The points which distinguish the best corn from that of the ordinary class will be explained and these lectures will be of great value to the growers in selecting the display ears next year.

Saturday has been set aside as the time for the domestic science and school agricultural displays and hundreds of visitors are expected here on that day. Quite a number of the rural schools in the county have arranged to have exhibits and

MEMORIAL LIBRARY FUND ESTABLISHED

Fund for Hanover College Library, Which Will be Memorial to E. Blish Thompson, Announced.

BRONZE TABLET TO BE ERECTED

Fund is in Connection With General Endowment Fund for Hanover—Local People Add Subscriptions.

Announcement was made at the Presbyterian church yesterday of the establishment of a fund to be known as the Thompson Memorial Library Fund for Hanover College, the interest from which is to be used in buying books and supplies for the Hanover College library. The fund is in connection with the general endowment fund which is being raised for Hanover, and is to be a memorial to E. Blish Thompson, who lost his life on the Lusitania. Announcement was made by Rev. W. S. Graham, of Franklin, who is in charge of the endowment campaign, in his address at the morning service. Several handsome subscriptions to the fund have been made by local people, and several were added at the service yesterday.

The interest from the fund will provide a neat sum to be expended annually in securing new volumes for the college library. A bronze tablet, commemorating Mr. Thompson's heroic self sacrifice, will be erected in the library. Mr. Thompson was a student at Hanover and was a member of the local church.

Mr. Graham, in speaking yesterday of the splendid work Hanover was doing for the church, said that 45 per cent. of the graduates of the school since its founding, have entered the ministry, a record that is not surpassed by any school west of Pittsburg. "The movement to assist the school in a financial way is only a fitting recognition of the splendid work the school has been going," said Mr. Graham.

The successful termination of the endowment campaign is in sight, according to Mr. Graham. The General Board of Education is to visit Hanover within the near future for an inspection preliminary to a gift of $50,000 to the fund. With the completion of the fund several new departments will be added to Hanover, including an agricultural department.

Rev. Graham also spoke at the evening service, in the absence of Rev. Compton, who preached at Crothersville.

Comedy From Real Life Almost Becomes Tragedy

Writers of photoplays are ever looking for something new. The world's best plays are produced from real life for out of the arena of individualism the unexpected always happens. It is these unexpected, thrilling moments that make a play a success and that cause the audiences to breathlessly await the next move of the actors and actresses. Incidentally, in real life the unexpected developments bring about the moments of intense excitement and sometime anxiety for the individuals.

The following scenario is wove about facts obtained from the foregoing "realm of life." The production might be appropriately entitled, "This Wee Little World of Ours," or something equally as fitting. The names of the players are as the war correspondents would say "omitted for obvious reasons," and for the same reasons the names of the towns involved are also censored. The facts may be recognized by some people in southern Indiana.

Scene, at a Football Game.

Actor and Actresses, Bevy of charming girls out for a lark and a young man who rides on a pass. In order to designate the man the writer of the play has decided to call him "Frank."

The opposing football teams are in the midst of a fierce battle. Frank is sitting near the bevy of charming girls who are interested in the game. During an exciting moment Frank makes a remark to one of the girls and while off her guard she answers him. He appears to be a manly man of many qualities and the conversation is continued from time to time.

After the game and before Frank leaves the crowd of debutants, he asks for their names "so I may write sometime." "Ah this is indeed, romantic" think the girls, and two names are given of other young lad-

SECOND NUMBER ON LYCEUM COURSE THURSDAY

Clarence Locke Miller to Speak at First Baptist Church on "The Prophet of Peace."

The second number of the Lyceum course will be held Thursday evening, when Mr. Clarence Locke Miller will lecture on "The Prophet of Peace" at the First Baptist church.

Mr. Miller, who is a remarkably gifted speaker in addition to being a man of exceptional educational attainments, has made a study of Leo Tolstoy, the poet of the Russian people, and makes him the subject of his talk. Through the imagination he appeals to both the intellect and the heart. His lecture on Tolstoy, whom he calls the Poet of Humanity, has been pronounced a masterpiece by educational leaders wherever it has been delivered.

Mr. Miller is an orator and tells the tragic and sublime story of the great Russian philosopher in a way that holds the interest of his audience to the last word.

For those who enjoy an educational and informative and at the same time entertaining lecture, a treat is in store. The Redpath bureau has received only the most favorable reports on Mr. Miller's lecture wherever it has been given.

SINGERS FOR CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT TO MEET

First Rehearsal of Chorus Choir Will be Held Tomorrow Night at St. Paul's Church.

The committee in charge of the entertainment for the Municipal Christmas Tree Celebration announces that the first rehearsal will be held Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at St. Paul's church. All singers in the city are urged to lend their services towards making this event a success. Certainly every one should be glad to lend their voice in helping to spread the Christmas spirit in Seymour, and it is hoped a chorus of from seventy-five to one hundred can be secured. Several of the old Christmas carols and hymns will be sung, and there will be special numbers. Miss Gasaway, supervisor of music in the public schools, will have charge of the children's chorus which will also sing.

SECTION 10 OF PRIMARY LAW IS HELD INVALID

Judge Eubank in Marion Circuit Court Declares Section is Unconstitutional—Passed in 1915.

By United Press

Indianapolis, November 29—Judge Louis Eubank in the Marion circuit court today declared unconstitutional section 10 of the Jones state wide primary bill passed by the 1915 legislature.

Attorney-General Stotsenburg could not be found to verify the report that this case would not be appealed but that a test case now before the supreme court would be pressed. The decision came in the case in which Carl H. Mote, a former progressive, seeks an injunction preventing Horace Cassady, a democrat, from challenging Mote when the latter votes at the Republican primaries. The case was prepared for Mote by the Republican state committee.

By United Press

Joliet, Ill., November 29—"Chicken Joe" Campbell must hang for the murder of Mrs. Edmund Allen, wife of the ex-warden of the state penitentiary. A jury today returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree and recommended the death penalty. The jury has been out since noon Saturday. Campbell was a trusty serving a life sentence in the prison.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO MEET COUNCIL

Seymour Commercial Club will be Represented at Special Meeting Tuesday Night.

REGARDING ELECTRIC RATES

Indiana Public Service Commission Expected to Set Date for Conference in Near Future.

The arguments which will be presented by the city at the conference with the representatives of the Interstate Public Service Company relative to the rates for electric service will be outlined at a special meeting of the city council Tuesday night. The special meeting was called upon the suggestion of Nathan Kaufman, president of the Seymour Commercial Club.

It was also proposed that the Commercial organization be represented by a committee and accordingly the following were appointed: L. C. Griffiths, Claude Carter, L. L. Bollinger, Fred Able and A. H. Ahlbrand. This committee will meet with the council and will decide what matters will be presented to the conference at which Judge James L. Clark, a member of the Indiana Public Service Commission, will preside. The conference will be held here within the next few days. The council is awaiting a date to be set by the commission.

Judge Clark, writing for the commission, stated in a letter to Mayor Ross several days ago that he would be ready to come here at any time, and the council replied that it would be prepared for the hearing after tomorrow night. Mayor Ross answered the communication and intimated that the city officials were hopeful that the date would be set within the next week or ten days.

The public is invited to attend the hearing Tuesday night, it is stated, and the council and city attorney will be glad to hear any complaints that are made relative to the service, alleged discrimination or other apparent defects which may have been noted by the patrons of the light company. As the service commission is quite strict about enforcing the rule against discrimination in service or rates this subject will be given a hearing.

City Attorney Kasting will have charge of the city's case at the hearing and has already outlined in a general way the arguments that will be presented to support the city's position that the rates are too high. The financial report of the public service accountants which was filed with the commission several weeks ago, will play an important part in the hearing, it is believed. The commission asked that the hearing be postponed until that report was prepared and for that reason it is believed that the figures will be used largely in finding a reasonable basis for the rates to be charged by the local company in the future. The financial report has been studied

DESCRIBES LIFE ON BATTLE FRONT

Lester McKinney, of This City, Receives Letter Written by His Cousin in Europe.

STOVES USED ON THE FIELD

Albert K. Dawson, Movie Photographer, Has All the Experiences of a Soldier in the Trench.

Lester McKinney, a rural mail carrier, has received a letter from his mother, Mrs. Harriett McKinney, of Indian Springs, which was received from her nephew, Albert K. Dawson, formerly of Vincennes, who has visited many of the war fronts in Europe since the war opened. Dawson was sent abroad by a national magazine as a staff photographer. After working in that capacity for several months he began taking pictures for motion picture theaters. He makes his reels on the battle front and sends them to his partner in New York where they are developed and distributed.

Dawson has written several interesting letters but since October 1 has not been allowed to send more than a postal card. The censorship of the mails is very rigid and does not permit lengthy, descriptive letters. In one letter which has been forwarded Mr. McKinney, Dawson says:

Since the first of April of this year I have been on the Russian front with the Austrians three times. Twice in Galicia and one trip up in Russian Poland in the vicinity of Ivangarod, a fortress about 100 miles southeast of Warsaw on the River Weichsel. That is about as near as I can locate it for you. However, that Poland country is all alike and the fighting is pretty much all alike so it might as well be one place as another. I am with the Austrians because they will let me go to the front while Germans will not, at present, at least. My life while on the front with the troops is not like anything else I have ever experienced, quite different in every way from national guard encampments. In the first place the soldiers do not live much in tents and one seldom sees any great numbers of soldiers together except when they are on the march advancing. The country is full of villages and peasant houses, barns, stables, etc. Most of these are burned or partly burned but the soldiers can always find a place to crawl into on rainy nights and when it does not rain they sleep out in the open with an overcoat for a cover. They have no blankets in summer and it gets pretty darned cold at night, too. I carry two blankets. When not on the march, but in position, that is, in a position that will be occupied for a week or more they build themselves all sorts of shelters out of brush, tree branches, old lumber, tin roofs, from burned houses and anything else they can lay hand on. This refers to those in the second line or reserves. The first is always a trench with underground shelters for the men roofed over with logs or lumber and covered with a foot or two of earth. The degree of perfection these shelters reach varies with the length of time the position has been occupied. The soldiers are always working on their "understanding" or underground shelters. These are usually tunneled out from the sides of the trench which marks the foremost line of defence. The ingenuity shown in this work is surprising. They fit the spaces with doors and windows taken from old houses; the window is always very small to be sure, probably a foot square for where light can come in a bullet can come in also. Stoves are improvised out of oil cans, metal buckets, a section of drain tile or a few bricks piled together. They can burn only charcoal for that makes no smoke. You know they fight in shifts, three or four days in the trenches and three or four in the reserve. Each man makes his own charcoal while on reserve duty out of anything he can find to burn. Another feature which is very different from our system is the feeding of the men. You know that every company, battery, squadron or column has its own field kitchen, a big boiler arrangement mounted on wheels which keeps cooking as the troops move along. As soon as they halt the top is unscrewed and hot food is ready to serve. It is not very dainty 'tis true, and usually in the form of thick soup or stew, but anything hot tastes good on a cold night after a long march. Food for the men in the trenches or small groups on detached duty is supplied in a square kettle having contents of about two cubic feet supplied with a top which is clamped down with screws so nothing splashes out. This square cooker after it is taken from the fire, is set down into an asbestos lined box with asbestos cover. The fireless cooker idea. It then stays hot for several hours. This box is then carried to the trenches on a pole on the shoulders of two men or packed two on a horse with a special pack saddle for mountain work where the cook wagon cannot go. The men seldom if ever, do their own cooking, it is always done in these company kitchens and distributed to the various units. The bread is supplied to the men every other day in big hard round loaves about ten inches in diameter and weighing about five pounds. This is baked in "division" bakeries located ten or fifteen miles behind the lines and each supplying a division or about 3,000 men.

The men also have an emergency ration consisting of cans of cooked beef weighing about twelve ounces. This is issued when the usual supplies of fresh or salted meat cannot be issued. This "conserve" as they call it, is very good. I have eaten a lot of it myself. Coffee comes in the form of pressed bricks, ground coffee and sugar pressed together. A very practical form. You make coffee by breaking off a piece and stirring it up in hot water. When in those places where the troops stay in the same positions for several weeks and the railroads can be carried up to within a few miles of the lines the soldiers live very well. They have cheese, sausage, dried fruits, potatoes, chocolate, beans, rice, bacon, fresh meat and half a liter of wine a day. But on these long campaigns into Galicia and Poland where the advance is at the rate of eight or ten miles a day for months, the feeding of the big armies becomes a tremendous problem. The Russians naturally destroy the railroads as fast as they retreat, bridges are burned and blown up and in many cases a charge of dynamite is exploded at every rail joint, thereby bending the rails at the ends and making them unfit for further use. Then the Austrians have to not only rebuild the bridges, and there are thousands of them, but they also have to bring in new railroad steel and rebuild the whole line. In the meantime the troops must be fed. Provisions are brought forward to the various divisions from the railroad terminus by wagon trains. In the Galician campaign the end of steel was on one side of the Carpathians and the troops on the other thus making it necessary to transport all supplies over the mountains on about four roads running through the four passes. There were no other roads on a front of about 250 miles. Absolutely everything for a whole army had to be brought in over four roads, ammunition, food, troops, artillery, wounded transport, aeroplanes, everything. The roads were just ordinary country roads wide enough for two lines of traffic and with the surfacing all gone to pieces, just one big hole after another. This was some problem for the quarter-masters department, believe me. Hundreds of "columns" or companies of laborers were brought up from the country behind the front and put to work on the roads and the thousands of Russian prisoners instead of being sent to the rear were put at the same task. As a result in a very short time, about a week, the roads were in apple pie order. Of course, up ahead they were always gaining new ground and more bad roads so the laborers followed the army and put the roads in order as fast as possible. Remember, too, that many miles of this distance was through mountainous country, beautiful scenery, but heart-breaking roads.

Another thing which counts for a good deal in this war is the machine gun. Something in which the National Guard is entirely lacking as far as I know. Every regiment of infantry here has its machine gun section, about twenty-five pieces to the regiment, I think. With the Austrians these guns are demountable and packed in sections on pack horses. With the Germans it is a heavier more solid construction and is hauled on a light wagon. With the light machines they go almost anywhere, through mountains, rivers, or woods, which is a big point in the rough country while on the other hand the German gun is undoubtedly a more efficient and accurate weapon when once in place. It is not taken apart but carried complete from wagon to position by two men. The Russian machine gun is still another model. Not demountable but solidly built onto a small two wheeler truck which can easily be pulled along by two men. It has a steel shield for the operator and looks like a small field gun when in place. This is very hard to handle in rough country off of the roads and it is too heavy and clumsy to be carried, so a great many of them fall into the hands of the Austrians and Germans as the Russians have to leave them behind in retreating after throwing the bolt away. The German mechanics soon set them in order though and they are soon at work against their former owners.

The officers have often told me that one machine gun is as good as a whole company of infantry when it comes to repelling an attack.

Then another point which we are weak on and which has been a very decided factor is the shovel work. Every soldier, infantry and cavalry, carries a shovel, and they have learned to use them too, believe me. In the early days of the war the Austrians were at a fearful disadvantage against the Russians because the latter had learned their lessons against the Japs in Korea and every time they stopped they made their position impregnable with shelter trenches and barbed wire. On my last trip I had occasion to visit and study some of the Russian fortified field positions in Poland. From a military engineer's point of view they were simply beautiful. To take them with a direct frontal infantry attack would require a force a hundred times as large as the defenders and the loss would be very heavy. In fact, I do not see how any number of infantry could break through without the help of artillery. Scientifically constructed barbed wire obstructions present an obstacle which is well-nigh impassable unless one has a good pair of clip-pers and a lot of time. And behind these obstructions in underground shelters are concealed machine guns which are so placed as to cover with their sweep the entire front. Of course artillery, if you have enough of it and the right kind, will prepare the way for these attacks by blowing these positions up with explosive shells, but that takes very accurate work and costs a lot of time and ammunition. A well placed shell will do a lot of damage but if you miss your mark just a little bit you can shoot all day and do no damage at all. That is one big lesson we must learn, "digging in." Lots of machine guns are needed to repel attack and lots of artillery to prepare the way for it. And above all else organization and system. I could talk all day about the wonderful organization and system of the Germans. That is what is winning this war. The typical German has certain personal characteristics which do not appeal to me as an American.

GREEK REPLY TO ENTENTE NOTE IS UNSATISFACTORY

Answer is Given to Demands of Al-lies in Connection with Cam-paign in Balkans.

By United Press.

Athen, November 29.—The Greek reply to the entente powers' last note setting forth their demands in connection with the Balkan campaign was handed to the allies' ministers here Sunday, it was announced today.

What the Greek communication states has not been made public, but while the note was conciliatory in tone it falls short of giving what the entente asks.

Mrs. Gossett has received word that he stood the operation well but had experienced some trouble with his heart since that time. The store is in charge of Mrs. Gossett during his absence.

My Old Love

Ah, no, no! It cannot be! No!
What! That little stout figure so gray
Is the Nannie I once used to know,
So brilliant and charming and gay,
So full of wild fancy and whim,
So careless, so fair and so young,
With a figure so slight and so slim
And a jest evermore on her tongue?

And yet, now I look on her face,
There is something I see in it still
Of the beauty she had and the grace
And the loveliness, too, if you will.
There is still the sweet charm that en-tranced

And the same pleasant smile and sweet tone
That she had when we flirted and danced
In the jolly young days that are gone.

'Tis years, such long years, since we met,
And I've changed so! Perhaps she will say,
"Who is this old fellow?" And yet,
Though I am older than she and more gray,
Perhaps she'll remember me still
And the days of our twenties. By Jove!
I will try it and, laugh if you will,
But she won't, I hope—my old love.

U. S. MOTOR CORPS CARRIED 6,000 IN CHAMPAGNE FIGHT.

Heroic Work of American Ambulance Workers Told In Letter From Front.

Richard Norton, organizer and commander of the American volunteer motor ambulance corps with the allied armies in France, after taking his corps through the great battle in Champagne in September and October, has written to his brother, Eliot Norton of New York, an account of the experiences of himself and his men.

The American motor ambulance corps now has entire charge of the ambulance service of the French Eleventh army corps. Mr. Norton has sixty odd cars under his command, and between Sept. 25, the day the great battle began, and Oct. 9 they carried over 6,000 wounded away from the firing line.

"For some weeks before the recent battle began," says Mr. Norton, "we knew that a big movement was on foot. The movements of troops by night and day, the great numbers of aeroplanes and captive balloons and general rumor all pointed to this. But it was not until we had been some three weeks stationed within a few miles of the line here that we had any inkling as to exactly when or at exactly what spot the blow would be delivered.

"The whole countryside had been most carefully prepared. Besides one main road from St. Jean to the vil-lages of Iurilus and Mesnil, between the French batteries and the front trenches, narrow gauge railways had been laid to carry munitions and other supplies to the fighting line, and for miles the land was scored with deep dug trenches.

"The country was absolutely packed. I can scarcely find any word to suggest a picture of how packed it was with troops and munition trains. The batteries of every sized gun were innumerable."

MILLIONAIRE IS A PRIVATE.

John Wren Owns Race Courses, News-papers and Other Enterprises.

Giving his name as John Wren, a man applied at Melbourne, Australia, for enlistment. He said his business was "racing."

"Are you the owner of the race courses?" asked the surprised recruiting officer.

"Yes," he replied.
He is perhaps the most widely known of Australia's millionaires. He owns several race courses, a newspaper or two and is interested in a great variety of industrial enterprises. He gave $2,500 as a prize to the first Australian to win the Victoria cross.

Wren passed all the tests and was promptly ticketed as a private in a newly formed regiment. He gave his age as forty-three.

ROOSTER LOSES; GIVES RANCH

Farmer Had Wagered His Fortune on Outcome In Cockpit.

As a result of a rooster fight, Gus Stephens, a retired farmer of Lyman, Neb., has deeded one of his ranches to Walter De Witt, clerk in a grocery store.

A fight was arranged, and a large crowd gathered under a big apple tree in the city park. The birds at first appeared to be evenly matched. After half an hour Stephens' rooster showed signs of exhaustion and not long after-ward succumbed to defeat.

THE WINDHORST STUDIO

ies in their home towns. Frank departs for his home and the girls forget him after they reenter the whirl of society in their own home town.

The incident is not forgotten by Frank, however, and in due time he produced the little note book from his pocket and finds the names which were given to him. He decides to write to one. The letter is mailed and on the following day is received by a young lady who is amazed to find it signed by an unknown name.
The letter refers to the football game and is forthwith handed to father who attended the same detective school that made Sherlock Holmes famous.

Father now steps into the scene and dictates a letter that shall be returned to Frank. The reply says that the wrong name has been given, that the daughter has never been in the city where the game was staged but says that if Frank wants to come to the town where the daughter lives she will be glad to assist him in finding "the girl."

Accordingly on a Saturday night while the wind without is blowing cold the telephone rings at the home of the daughter and after a hasty consultation with mother the daughter tells the young man to come "out."
About 7:30 he appears and apologizes and says he would like to find the girl he had met at the game. It is arranged that the daughter, her mother and Frank shall go to a movie in hope that the other girl may attend.
Frank assures the daughter that he can pick her out among a thousand.

Events move rapidly during the hour following the little party's arrival at the theater. Frank gives no attention to the miles of film that are reeled across the curtain. His eyes move over the audience and occasionally he glances towards the door.

After he had been in the theater for a few moments he turns towards the door as a party of girls enters. He jumps and then controlling himself, he whispers, "There she is." After he show he made straightway for her.

When he came face to face with her the unexpected happened. The girl saw the daughter standing beside Frank. She suddenly remembered that she had given the name of the daughter to Frank and realizes that there is something doing.
Mother takes a hand in the conversation at this point and asks or an explanation. The girl blushes and says she is "so sorry" and apologizes to the daughter, her mother and Frank. Frank is not pleased with the unexpected situation and plainly says so.

He emerges from the theater and the "investigation" is instituted in earnest. Several other mothers are called up over the telephone and are given information of which they knew nothing. Apologies came thick and fast in an effort to reach a 'satisfactory adjustment.' Other mothers will be notified sooner or later, according to the best official information."

Frank leaves the town an older and wiser man. He also leaves several charming young ladies who have promised never to give names of other people while on their "larks."
This has not yet been passed by the National Board of Censorship, but may soon be produced and shown in a local theater where the facts will be recalled very vividly to the actresses to the plot.

"A FRIEND OF THE SOLDIER."
 Morton was as energetic in looking after the welfare of the soldier in the service as he was in getting them to enlist. When he found Indiana troops to be suffering from cold, he bombarded the government for overcoats and even went east on shopping tours of his own to secure them. He appealed to the patriotic women of Indiana to prepare clothing comforts for the soldiers. He sent agents to follow up the armies, to help the disabled, visit the hospitals, aid in getting supplies to the soldiers and to look after their general welfare. There was good reason for the unbounded confidence and devotion, which Indiana troops gave their war governor.

Frank Patrick, who was stricken with paralysis of his right side two weeks ago, is improving at his home on North Walnut street. He is gradually regaining strength and with it the control of his voice is returning.

"I HAVE SUCH A LOVELY BARGAIN"

Women like to compare notes and when one gets a "lovely bargain" she naturally exults. Women are trained buyers. They take delight in shopping. They do not all seek "out prices" or great reductions but they do want a full money's worth. Women are natural newspaper readers—and very close readers of newspaper advertising. They find it both pleasant and profitable. It is almost as much fun shopping round through the newspaper columns as it is visiting the stores. And the newspaper shopping can be done at one's own fire-side.

FEDERAL BUREAU TAKES UP EDUCATION OF EDUCATOR

First Step in Campaign was Organization of National Rural Teachers' Reading Circle.

U. P. Correspondence.
 Washington, D. C., November 29.—Because "the future greatness of the American nation depends in large measure upon the prosperity of the 50,000,000 men, women and children in its rural communities," the Federal Education Bureau has started to educate the country school marm, so she can educate the fifty million in her little red school house, which is intended to equip them to become prosperous.

Every state, county, township and village in the country and the national education association is helping Uncle Sam in this education of educators with a view to ultimate national prosperity.

The first step in this campaign was the organization of the National Rural Teachers' Reading circle, through the co-operation of the National Education association and State departments of public instruction. H. W. Foght, specialist in rural school practice, is directing the work from the Bureau of Education. Branches have been organized in thirty-four states, giving an opportunity to 250,000 rural school teachers to have a part in this work.

A two year's reading course of non-professional books of cultured value, educational classics, general principles and methods of education, rural education and rural life problems, has been outlined. Those who give satisfactory evidence of having read intelligently seventeen books from the lists given, will be awarded a With Honor certificate signed by the U. S. Education Commissioner and the State school officials.

Mr. Foght says "the greatness and future of the American nation depend on the prosperity of its rural communities. The 50,000,000 men, women and children who live in the open country and in villages and small towns must have more adequate opportunity for wholesome and remunerative living. This calls for a new leadership which can come to rural communities only through the highest degree of education of a cultural and practical kind.

"The vital factor in education is the teacher. The rural school teacher means more for rural education and rural life than the city teacher can mean for urban education and urban life.

"Therefore we must look to the country teachers and their preparation, and see to it that they shall be men and women of the best native ability, the most thorough education and the highest degree of professional knowledge and skill."

SEYMOUR PEOPLE PRAISE SIMPLE MIXTURE

Many in Seymour praise the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Alder-i-ka. This remedy is the most THOROUGH bowel cleanser ever sold being even used successfully in appendicitis. ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gasses rumble and pass out. Alder-i-ka cannot gripe and the INSTANT action is surprising. C. E. Loertz. Advertisement Blustering winds, flurries of snow and falling temperature have characterized the weather during the last forty-eight hours. The wind Sunday night was high and was followed early today by a falling thermometer. Throughout Sunday and today there have been snow flurries and on Sunday night there was a little sleet.

The Sunday School of the Glenlawn mission gave a Thanksgiving program consisting of music and recitations Sunday afternoon at their regular Sunday School hour. This school, which has just recently been organized is doing some splendid work under the direction of their superintendent, Miss Nellie Everhart.

The doll bazaar which was given by the ladies of the First M. E. church in the Searra building, on South Chestnut street closed Saturday night and from the financial standpoint was a success. The exact amount which was made by the bazaar is not yet known as several bills are outstanding. Many dolls were sold during the two days the bazaar was in progress. The largest purchase made during the sale was by Nathan Kaufman who purchased the bride and groom at auction for $25. Other dolls sold from $5 to $10. On Saturday night an oyster stew was served at the building.

CZAR REWARDS AMERICAN; MAKES HIM A GENERAL

Appoints Dr. Philip Newton of Washington Surgeon of Sixth Army Corps.

According to advices from Petrograd, Dr. Philip Newton of Washington, who went to Russia shortly after the outbreak of the war in charge of an American Red Cross unit and later married a Russian princess, has been appointed surgeon of the czar's Sixth army corps, with the rank of general. This makes Dr. Newton the highest ranking American citizen on duty with a European army.

Dr. Newton is a graduate of the United States Military academy at West Point, class of 1912. While he was on a mission to the Philippines for the Smithsonian Institution his fiancée, Miss Alice Dorothy Nixon, was drowned at a pleasure resort on the lower Potomac river. Her death occurred the day Dr. Newton sailed from Manila for San Francisco en route to Washington to claim her as his bride, but he did not learn of it until his arrival at San Francisco.

Returning to Washington, he resumed the practice of medicine. Early in the European war he was sent out by the American Red Cross. Upon arriving in Russia he was placed in charge of a hospital at Kiev. There while engaged in the work of making wounded Russian soldiers comfortable Dr. Newton fell in love with Princess Schahkofskaia of Petrograd, who was serving as a volunteer nurse in the same hospital. Their marriage was celebrated in Petrograd last January.

When the American Red Cross units were withdrawn from Russia Dr. Newton entered the service of the Russian government, which has now shown its appreciation by giving him the rank of general, with medical supervision over an entire army corps.

CONGRESS READY FOR NEW SESSION

Two Democratic Conferences Held Today to Decide on Preliminary Program.

CLOTURE TO BE DISCUSSED

Kern, Re-elected Chairman of The Caucus Committee—Rules Committee to Report.

By United Press.

Washington, November 29—Machinery of the Sixty-fourth congress which convenes next Monday got slowly into motion today. Harmony marked two democratic conferences. Family differences were postponed.

The democratic senators held their first caucus and unanimously re-elected Senator Kern, of Indiana, caucus chairman. Only nine of the democratic senators, including Senator Shively, were absent. Consideration of cloture was postponed.

Democrats of the house way and means committee also met and started the preliminary drafting of committee slates. It was practically decided today how many democratic and republican members would have places on each.

In neither conference was vital questions of party policy raised. The senate democrats adjourned until Wednesday when the rules committee will present the cloture plan and Kern will announce a steering committee.

SETS TIME LIMIT AND DIES.

Average Life of Range Finder Is Thirty Days—Barnett No Exception.

News of the death in the British trenches of Lieutenant John W. Barnett, graduate of the University of California and a leader in athletics, was received in Berkeley, Cal., by John Stroud, graduate manager, and showed that the young officer was killed within a few days of the time limit he put on his life.

In a recent letter Lieutenant Barnett said he had been promoted to be a range finder.

"The average life of a range finder is thirty days," his letter said. "I have been on the job seventeen days. You will know soon whether or not I outlast the average."

Fighting within a few miles of where Lieutenant Barnett died are his two brothers, one of whom was his classmate at Berkeley. All are under twenty-five.

GEORGIA'S NEW DRY LAWS.

Newspapers, Periodicals and Billboards Affected by Latest Measure.

Bills prohibiting publication of liquor advertisements in Georgia and limiting the amount of liquor individuals may have shipped into the state have been passed by the legislature. The measures, which supplement a bill already passed prohibiting manufacture or sale within the state of any drink containing more than one-half of 1 per cent alcohol, are understood to have the approval of Governor Harris.

The anti-shiping bill provides that a person may receive from outside the state only two quarts of liquor, one gallon of wine and forty-eight pints of beer each month. The other measure prevents advertising liquor in any manner in periodicals, newspapers, billboards or otherwise. Both will become effective May 1, 1916.

Periscopic Paragraphs.

Brightness of Life.

A thought that is winged from friend to friend
Doesn't seem such a wonderful thing;
Yet it carries the prayer for a joy without end,
And it throbs with a big, friendly ring.

A mere word of cheer, in the shadow of night,
When discouragement darkens the way,
Will illumine our hearts with the glorious light
Of a hopeful and sun-brightened day.

When failure confronts us and darkens our goals,
How we long for the clasp of a hand!
It is then that we cry from the depths of our souls
For a friend who can just understand.

A bright, cheery smile often gives us the strength
That we lack in the vortex of strife,
For it lightens our load as we travel the length
Of the care-laden path we call Life.

So we find, after all, that the things we thought small Loom colossal above all the host;
That the best of God's gifts are the friends we can call
To our side when we need them the most.

Scripture Up to Date.

The society editor of a Cincinnati paper evidently has a later edition of the Bible than ours, and it seems that the span of years allotted to any one individual has been increased about twenty years. It would also appear that the Queen City has some sprightly elderly matrons in the social set. Witness the following from a column and a half description of a party: "Miss Payne's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Payne, whose fine face was well set off by a black toilet of lace and net, finished the receiving line, and, although she has already passed the four score years and ten of the biblical allotment, she was as interested and as vivacious as anybody at the party."

Teacher—to Johnny, who is looking absent minded out of the window: "Johnny, what are you doing?" Johnny: "I—I was just thinking." Teacher: "Get your book and mind your own business. Don't you know that's against the rules?"

With football out of the way, the high school basketball teams will have some chance of being mentioned on the sporting page.

Who delegates the authority to Walter Eckersall and Walter Camp to pick these All Western and All American teams, anyway?

One of the best examples of business co-operation we have ever heard of was in the Southern town where the undertaker banqueted the doctors.

Strictly Germproof

The antiseptic baby and the prophylactic pup
Were playing in the garden when the bunny gamboled up;
They looked upon the creature with a loathing undisguised;
It wasn't disinfected and it wasn't sterilized.

They said it was a microbe and a hotbed of disease;
They steamed it in a vapor of a thousand odd degrees;
They froze it in a freezer that was cold as banished hope
And washed it in permanganate with carbolic soap.

In sulfureted hydrogen they steeped its wiggly ears,
They trimmed its frisky whiskers with a pair of hard boiled shears;
They donned their rubber mittens and they took it by the hand
And lectured it a member of the fumigated band.

There's not a micrococcus in the garden where they play;
They bathe in pure Iodoform a dozen times a day,
And each imbibes his rations from a hygienic cup—
The bunny and the baby and the prophylactic pup.

BEWARE OF THE COLORS, ART CRITIC WARNS WOMEN.

Professor Parsons Tells of "Crimes" Committed in Selecting Clothes.

"Art is the quality of perfect fitness. The war is forcing us to commercial art."

"Public sentiment is driving us to personal art."

With those three premises to start with Frank Alvah Parsons, president of the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts, made tart comments at an art meeting at Kansas City on the things that are not art and commended some that are.

It is the women that violate art worst in dress, he declares, and that is due to a disregard of the fundamental facts of the three primary colors—yellow, red and blue—as follows:

"Yellow means light, cheer, and is the sunshine of color.

"Red is blood, is hot, the color of passion.

"Blue is the ice of color and means rest.

"Most women know that white makes them look larger than black," he continued, "but they do not realize that red makes them look a third larger when they dress in it or that it makes a room look a third smaller to decorate it in red."

He also said:

"The fleshy woman who wears red commits a crime against herself.

"Orange is the loudest and crudest color of all. The one who wears it would enjoy living under an elevated railway.

"The boy who wears a pink necktie is liable to be mistaken for his sister.

"Bright red is blood, the color of passion. It inflames a bull and would a human if he was still human and not so calloused.

"Light colors mean youth and femininity and laughter.

"Dark colors mean dignity and masculinity and often depression.

"The color a woman chooses advertises her and often tells a scandal.

"An artistic home must be a harmonious unit, not a museum of individual specimens."

THE MESEKE JEWELRY SHOP

PLANS COMPLETED FOR CORN EXHIBIT

there will be keen competition for the silver cup which will be awarded to the school having the best exhibit.

Band music and vaudeville acts will furnish the entertainment during the Show. The display was arranged by the Retail Merchants' Association and they have spared no expense or money in providing an excellent program and valuable prizes for the farmers of this county. Besides the annual prize, a large silver cup, there will be two other cups awarded. These will be given in the county contest.

Every farmer in the county, however, is given an equal opportunity to win a prize. The premiums have been awarded according to townships and this gives each farmer an opportunity to compete with the corn grown in his immediate neighborhood. The winners in the township contests then become competitors in the county contest.

Because of the excellent quality of corn grown in the county this year it is believed that excellent exhibits will be entered. The Show is part of the movement to encourage the farmers to grow a better quality of corn so that it can be used for seed corn. A larger revenue is derived from the sale of seed corn than from the sale of grain used exclusively for feed.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO MEET COUNCIL

carefully by the councilmen and others who will take an active part in pushing the city's case at the conference.

It is hoped that a satisfactory adjustment of the rates will be reached at the conference and looking towards this end the council is anxious to have the patrons of the company well represented at the special council meeting tomorrow night. The members want to know all the complaints that can be made in justification of its claim for lower rates. If a satisfactory settlement is reached there will be no necessity of taking the case to the commission in the regular manner and the rates will not only go into effect sooner but the expense of the action will be greatly reduced.

ONLY SIX LEFT OF 1,150.

Original Canadian Regiment Cut to Pieces at Ypres.

"You can count the surviving members of the original Princess Pat's regiment on the fingers of your hand," declared Oscar Hennings of Toronto.

"When the second universities' company joined us at Armentieres in July there were a score left of the 1,150 who received the colors from the princess in August, 1914. There were six when I left, but the college men will have to uphold our reputation."

Hennings was one of 800 Canadians who were invalided home. Another was Private Joshua Zivian of Gananoque, called the "miracle man." At Ypres a bullet passed through the outer wall of the heart while it was expanded.

Sergeant Salvaneschi of Toronto described what he saw at Ypres.

"The first battalion made a gallant stand, but found themselves cut off," he said. "The third battalion, in support, were not able to render any succor, and we were forced to see those brave fellows cut to pieces. That battalion lost all but a hundred men and one officer."

NEIGHBORS MET AS FOES.

Canadian Saw His Old Friend Bayoneted in a German Trench.

Two Winnipeg residents met in death grips recently in a German trench in Flanders. This is the narrative drawn from the survivor, who has returned to North Winnipeg, discharged owing to wounds received at Ypres.

The Englishman, departing in August, 1914, for Valcartier, took farewell of many friends, including a German, who had for several years been his next door neighbor. They had been exceptionally good friends.

One night in Flanders came the order to take the German trenches. The Winnipeg man, leaping the German parapet, fell on a foe. Both lost rifles and grappled in the pitch darkness. Finally the narrator got the death grip on his foe's throat. A star shell showed the face as that of the German who had said goodbye to him in Winnipeg. "Then my comrade bayoneted him, and dawn confirmed my suspicion that my former friend was dead.

"I am sure he recognized me," said the survivor, "but how did he get there?"

GERMANY ENDS JOB IN BALKANS

Berlin Announces Serbia Has Been Crushed.

100,000 ARE CAPTURED

Austro-Germany Now Directing Attention in the East Against Roumania and the Russian-Balkan Army, Which Is Massing to Invade Bulgaria.

London, Nov. 29.—Austro-German-Bulgarian operations against Serbia, which were begun on Oct. 6, when Austro-German armies crossed the Drina, the Save and the Danube, have been completed, according to the official German statement issued at Berlin. The German object, the establishment of communications with Bulgaria and Turkey, has been attained.

The remnants of the Serbian army are reported to be fleeing into the mountains of Albania. Over 100,000 Serbian prisoners of warfare claimed by the Germans are held, while the losses of the Serbians in dead and wounded are not estimated. The losses in war material are described as "incalculable."

French and British troops continue to disembark at Salonica and the French line in the southeastern corner of Serbia is still holding its positions.

With the completion of their operations against Serbia, the Austro-German-Bulgarian forces, according to Rome dispatches, are now preparing to turn their attention to Roumania and to the Russian army which is reported to be massing on the Danube for an invasion of Bulgaria through that country.

A dispatch from the Rome correspondent, telling of the preparations being made by the central powers against Roumania and the Russian Balkan army, says:

"Roumania has made an evasive reply to Russia's notification that her troops are concentrated in Bessarabia for the purpose of going to the aid of Serbia. The Roumanian answer implies that protests will be made against the crossing of Roumanian territory by these forces, but that no active opposition to their transit will be made.

"As a result of the Roumanian position, Austro-German troops from Serbia are being rushed to Rutchuk, on the Bulgarian bank of the Danube, while Bulgarian forces are being concentrated along the lower Danube.

"Roumania opposed the concentration of the Austro-German forces on her frontier and has now declared the Danube and both its banks to be a zone of war, thus putting the river in the hands of the military authorities, and has massed troops on her Bulgarian and Hungarian frontier, withdrawing the troops on the Russian frontier for the purpose."

AERIAL BATTLE IN BELGIUM

Germans Lose Heavily in Clash With the French.

Paris, Nov. 29.—Squadrons of German and allied aeroplanes fought extensively over Belgium and a French airman, who started in pursuit of an enemy squadron brought down a German machine which fell into the sea off west Ende-Bains. A German torpedo boat and German motorboats went to the rescue of the aviators and there followed a fight over the sea in which hydroaeroplanes of the allies and French artillery took part.

One of the German motor boats was sunk in this combat.

A squadron of ten French aeroplanes bombed the hangars at Habistro, dropping bombs and setting fire to the German hangars.

The summary of the aeroplane activity shows that one German motor boat was sunk and that seven German aeroplanes and two balloons were brought down or damaged.

FIND BODY HANGING ON TREE

Victim Was Charged With the Murder of His Grandmother.

Gibsonburg, O., Nov. 29.—The body of John H. Willey, recently tried for the murder of his grandmother, Mrs. Eva Kimble, last February and granted a new trial was found hanging to a tree within a few rods of where the murder occurred.

Circumstances surrounding the finding of the body indicated that Willey met death at other hands than his own.

Strike Settlement Hinted.

Ft. Wayne, Ind., Nov. 29.—New rumors of peace in the local street car strike, which began two months ago, were afloat following a meeting of Governor Ralston's conciliation committee. It was believed the committee would disband, but instead of that some of the members said that peace now seems more likely than it has for some days.

Receiver May Sue Gould.

St. Louis, Nov. 29.—B. F. Bush, receiver for the Missouri Pacific railroad was authorized to file suit in the federal district court here to recover from George Gould property, which the latter is said to hold in trust, provided Gould does not surrender the title to the property in thirty days.

ALLEGED BIGAMIST AND FORGER SOUGHT

Indiana Bankers' Association on Trail of H. J. Neff.

Laporte, Ind., Nov. 29.—Wanted for bigamy and several check forgeries, Harry J. Neff, who came to Bremen several months ago, where he is alleged to have posed as a wealthy man, drawing the attention of the community with the word that he was going to build a hotel, and to have bought an automobile on a worthless check drawn for $500 on a Missouri bank, is being sought by detectives of the Indiana Bankers' association.

It developed that Neff's alleged first wife lives in a Kansas town. He married his second wife at Mountain Grove, Mo., taking her to Bremen, where, it is charged, he drew checks on a mythical account on the bank of the Missouri town, disappearing after he had obtained $500. He next appeared at Gainesville, Ga., where he married a Miss Lohr, after a "love-at-sight" courtship, following a forged telegram that his father had been killed, it is charged.

Neff is alleged to have forged checks in the Georgia town and started on a trip to California. The wife at Bremen was advised, it is said, of her husband's alleged bigamous marriage when marked copies of newspapers containing elaborate accounts of his marriage reached her. The wedding was made a society event in Gainesville. Checks totaling several thousand dollars now have turned up, drawn on banks in towns where Neff lived and posed as the possessor of considerable wealth, according to the charges.

FARMER'S BACK IS BROKEN

Assailant Is Stabbed in the Breast and Back.

Bedford, Ind., Nov. 29.—Homer George, a merchant of Logan, and Curtis McPike, a farmer, are near death following a fight. McPike had a contract to build a road and George declared that McPike dumped a lot of lumber and grading tools on his farm. He demanded their removal and the fight followed.

George knocked McPike down and then kicked him nearly to death, breaking his back and several ribs. McPike defended himself with a knife and George was stabbed in the breast and back, the knife penetrating his lungs several times.

FRENCH GENERALS RETIRED

Ten Officers Put on Shelf in Favor of Younger Men.

Paris, Nov. 29.—The constant efforts of General Joffre, the French commander-in-chief, to keep the higher commands in the charge of men of proved vigor and initiative are exemplified once more by an announcement in the official journal that seven division generals and three brigade generals have been transferred to the reserve. Their places have been given to younger men who have distinguished themselves in recent operations.

Among the officers retired are General A. M. B. Drude and General Demas Latrille.

New Police Chief.

Goshen, Ind., Nov. 29.—Mayor Spohn has appointed William C. Chrisman, an employee of the New York Central railroad, as chief of police to succeed Edgar J. Vesey, who was compelled to retire when he pleaded guilty to a charge of extortion in the elyving and collecting of fees in the police court.

DOMINION GRAIN TRADE STOPPED

Commandeering Wheat Paralyzes Business.

MANIFEST GREAT ANXIETY

Prediction Made Order Will Cause Ruin of Many Grain Houses—Object Said to Put Stop to Speculative Prices to Supply Italian Government.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 29.—Grain men say that the grain trade of the Dominion is paralyzed as the result of the commandeering by the government of all Nos. 1, 2 and 3 northern wheat in the terminal elevators at Ft. William and Port Arthur and in eastern terminals. Some 20,000,000 bushels of wheat have been taken and it is reported that the seizure will extend to other parts of Canada.

It is understood that the action was taken at the request of the British government. In a statement made public by the government it is said the object of the extraordinary order is to put a stop to speculative prices so that real orders from England for the Italian government. Prices for the wheat is yet to be determined.

The government order also brought a sudden stop to the loading of vessels in the harbors. Among the ships affected were the two largest of the great lakes, the Morden and Snyder, Jr., which have a capacity of 450,000 bushels each. All inspection and weighing also have ceased. The order seizing all grains in boats in harbors was modified, so that eight vessels, partially loaded, will be permitted to proceed to lower lake ports.

So far the farmers are unaffected, but as there is uncertainty as to the length to which the Dominion government, at the instance of the mother government, may go, grain men make no attempt to conceal their anxiety. They have many important orders to fill before the end of the month and as only a few days remain before the expiration of these trade agreements, anxiety is great.

The grain men are disconcerted because no previous knowledge of the government's intention had been given them. The seizures were made only a short time before midnight, and information was conveyed to dealers here in telegraphic messages from agents at points at the heads of the lakes. These messages contained the information that railway companies having thousands of loaded cars in various yards had been forbidden to unload.

The assurance that the government does not contemplate the seizure of grain now in the elevators of western Canada, or under the control of farmers, relieved the anxiety of the grain men somewhat, but the prediction is made that, nevertheless, the action will cause the ruin of many grain houses.

It is understood that there remains 150,000,000 bushels of wheat for sale in western Canada.

SHIPS COLLIDE IN HARBOR

City of Savannah Smashes Into the Freighter Italia.

New York, Nov. 29.—The Savannah liner, City of Savannah, left her pier at the foot of Spring street, bound in ballast to the far east, under charter to D. T. Warden, of the Standard Oil Co., and the whole official force of the line was on hand to see her off on the longest voyage ever undertaken by an American coastwise steamship.

An hour later Captain Hammond was back at the pier with the officials who had learned by wireless that the City of Savannah had torn a big hole in her bow by collision with the freighter Italia, just in from the Mediterranean. The Italia anchored off Liberty island, waiting for flood tide to dock.

EVACUATE SMALLER POSTS

British Makes Statement Regarding Situation in Egypt.

London, Nov. 29.—The Central News quotes an official British statement from Cairo, Egypt, saying that evil disposed agents have induced western Bedouins to commit minor aggressions against frontier posts. In order to avoid friction, says the report, the government evacuated the smaller posts and has concentrated its forces in order better to deal with the matter.

The statement says that Egypt is not anxious, but is trusting to the friendly expressions of the Grand Senussi.

Subpoena Witnesses For Murder Trial.

Topton, Ind., Nov. 29.—Fifty-three witnesses have been subpoenaed for the trial of Mrs. Cora Robertson, charged with the murder of Walter Varner, which is set for trial Tuesday. Many of the witnesses are prominent in church, social and business circles.

Girl Is Missing.

Madison, Ind., Nov. 29.—Miss Margaret Simon, seventeen-year-old daughter of J. S. Sigmon, a farmer, is missing and is being sought by her father and the officers. Her parents believe she has eloped with Elmer Stein of North Vernon.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

World's Peace, He Says, Can Be Obtained In League of Nations.

Washington, Nov. 29.—In a London speech Mr. Shaw says: "I do not believe there can be any peace in the world until there is peace between England, France and Germany. If Great Britain defeated Germany very heavily the latter might try to seek a combination with the United States. In fact, Britain might drive Germany and America into one another's arms by carrying victory too far."

Servant Girl.

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 29.—Late developments have mystified Prosecutor Florence in his efforts to reassure himself that the murder of Samuel Waitzman, his wife, their son-in-law, David Kigner and his wife and John Gannas, a Hungarian farm hand, was the act of a crazed man, who afterward committed suicide.

In searching for lacking information regarding the domestic life of the family, which lived in seclusion in the farmhouse, three miles from here, where the murders and suicide occurred, Mr. Florence has stumbled on information that a servant girl employed there, left after a quarrel with the family. The girl's name is not known, but she came to the Waitzmans' two months ago. Shortly after the night of the murders, the girl went to Justice C. W. Sedam here, in an effort to collect money she claimed was due her as wages. Unsuccessful in this she is said to have threatened to "get square" with the Waitzmans.

"I am anxious to find that girl," said Mr. Florence, "and my men are looking for her."

Another development was the arrest of Samuel Kigner, of New York, a brother of the murdered David Kigner, on a charge to which he confessed of having taken a deed from the room next that in which the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Waitzman were found.

VON MOLTKE DENIES RUMORS

Danish Portion of Schleswig-Holstein Not to Be Restored.

London, Nov. 29.—A Central News dispatch from Copenhagen states that the Royal Prussian president of Schleswig-Holstein, Herr von Moltke, issued an official statement to the effect that the prevalent rumors that the Danish portion of Schleswig-Holstein will be restored to Denmark after the war are unfounded.

Herr von Moltke declares that the report is being spread by persons banking upon the victory of the allies, and is sufficient to point to the present position of the military operations. He regards the attitude of the imperial government toward Denmark to be that it will be unjust to the dignity and political foresight of Denmark to suppose it would permit itself to be led from neutrality by hope of reward promised from outside.

Belgian Baby Not to Be Deported.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Jeanne, a fourteen-months-old Belgian baby girl recently brought to New York by way of England, will be permitted to remain in the United States under a decision by the immigration bureau overruling a deportation order of its officers at New York.

Damage Suit Compromised.

Rensselaer, Ind., Nov. 29.—The damage suit of Anthony Nomsen against Henry Whitaker, sheriff of Lake county, and others for alleged injuries sustained when he was beaten in a saloon at Cedar Lake, was compromised for $1,000. The case came here on a change of venue.

Arrested For Theft of Rig.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 29.—Abe Jacobson of Brookston and Emery Nulf of this city were arrested here after they had stolen a horse and buggy belonging to B. B. Smith of Heath.

Several Good Reasons Why The Country Store Sells For Less

1st—20 years' experience as a buyer of the very lines of merchandise I am now selling, consequently knowing how, when and where to buy.

2nd—Buying a large percent of my lines direct from factories and brokers.

3rd—Being a quantity buyer jobbers offer tempting prices to get our business.

4th—Our enormous outlet supplying general stores and huxters.

5th—Selling for cash no loss by bad accounts which every credit store must overcome.

6th—No expensive delivery system to maintain. Country people pay for this service in a store where deliveries are made and receive no benefits therefrom.

The Country Store—Almost 6 years ago said merchandise could be sold for less in Seymour on a strictly cash, no delivery system, and the number of stores now following in our footsteps easily proves that statement. This store is truly the laboring man's and farmer's friend, and we welcome all classes of business.

MEMBERS OF MOB MASKED

Victim Taken From Henderson (Ky.) Jail—Girl Was Attacked and Dragged Into Dark Alley, Where Her Screams Enabled Her to Be Rescued.

Henderson, Ky., Nov. 29.—Forty masked men forced an entrance to the cell of Ellis Buckner, negro, twenty-four years old, in the county jail. They took him to the river front, three blocks away, and hanged him to a willow tree in a lonely spot. The victim was charged with an attempt to assault Miss Annie Hardin, a white girl.

Early in the morning the mob, according to Henderson police, formed suddenly in front of the jail and demanded entrance. Arizona Grayson, deputy sheriff, and the jailers were the only ones in the jail. The mob threatened to batter down the door and wreck vengeance on the officers, the police say, and the doors were opened. Then the mob demanded that the corridor and cell door be opened.

The negro was dragged to the foot of Powell street and hanged, a rope being thrown across the limb of a willow tree there. Chief of Police Graves located the body during the day and cut it down. Henderson po-

STATE RESTS IN SMITH TRIAL

Witness Declares No Weapon Found on Body of Slain Man.

Noblesville, Ind., Nov. 29.—The state rested in the trial of Cassius Smith, charged with the murder of his father-in-law, Marcellus Hollingsworth, near New Augusta last February.

The most important witness for the prosecution was Otis Davis, who testified that Smith told him he shot Hollingsworth immediately after stepping into the kitchen door at his home. Clarence Vandeman and Thomas Kelly, who were among the first to reach the houses after the tragedy, told the jury of finding Hollingsworth's body. Close by lay the body of Smith, who attempted to commit suicide after killing his father-in-law.

Kelly declared no weapon was found on Hollingsworth's body.

CHAPTER XI.

A Visit From Father.

DURING this trying month old Cyrus Martin, the soap king, had sat in his library in Fifth avenue, or in his swivel chair at his office, and wondered how things were going with the boy anyway. From such information as reached him, he was not so encouraged as he would have liked to be. A month was not long enough to tell, of course, in the normal course of things, but that fool advertising made another matter of it. Those huge billboards and electric signs and balloons and sandwich men—piffle all of it, but Martin knew what such things cost, and was sure that Rodney's company could not possibly stand it. He was worried. And he was annoyed too. These abominable sandwich men; he had had one set of them arrested that afternoon on the avenue. He couldn't stand it. People might know who were in this ridiculous 13 Soap company, and he should be well laughed at.

Another and contradictory thing was the rumor he had heard downtown yesterday that the Andover Soap people were backing Rodney's company, going to build a plant for them. In fact, putting one thing and another together, he decided he would drop down and give the boy a call at his office. It wouldn't be bad to see him again, and Mary Grayson too. So he presented himself at the new soap company's office, on Broadway, and was kept waiting for his pains. A Miss Burke took in his name, and he guessed that it caused some excitement, for he could hear Rodney's voice and another chatting inside while he cooled his heels.

When he was at last ushered in the place looked like a real office, on the whole, and there at a desk sat Rodney, talking through the telephone. His father caught something about "not considering it," and "not having any stock for sale"—"quite out of the question," et cetera, et cetera, as he took a chair.

"Well, well," thought Mr. Martin, rather pleased and proud. "What's this?"

Rodney in a moment dropped the telephone and espied his father.

"Why, hello, father!" he greeted him genially.

"Hello, son!" said Mr. Martin. He observed with astonishment that Rodney was very busy filing papers, opening and closing drawers and that every now and then he signed a typewritten letter viciously with a rubber stamp.

"Sit down, won't you?" said Rodney presently. "I'll be with you in just a moment."

"Thanks," said his father dryly.

"Have a cigar?" said Rodney, handing the old gentleman a box in an absent-minded way.

"Thanks," said Mr. Martin, biting off the end and lighting it at the match which Rodney held for him. Rodney lighted one too.

"Surprised to see me, I suppose?" said his father presently.

"Not a bit," said Rodney, flourishing a contract and signing it. Mr. Martin had some curiosity to see what it could be, this thing which really looked like a contract, but his son turned it upside down and blotted it ostentatiously on his desk pad.

"There, that's done," he added. "Now, father, what can I do for you?"

"Well, my boy," said Mr. Martin, "I just dropped in for a social call. The fact is I've rather missed you."

"I've missed you, too, father," said Rodney.

"Thought I'd have a look in and find out how things were going," said Mr. Martin abruptly.

"Fine—fine!" said Rodney. "Everything breezing right along. Of course, I'm always glad to see you," he added, pushing the buzzer, "but right now, father, I'm pretty busy, so you'll excuse me if"—

He got very busy indeed again with his papers.

"Well, if you can spare the time I'd like a little business talk with you, Rodney," said Mr. Martin, with a certain sarcasm.

"Certainly, in just a minute," said Rodney, still preoccupied with his papers, but pricking up his ears.

Ambrose Peale, coming in, stopped suddenly when he saw who their visitor was. Rodney looked up at him.

"That's all right; come right in," he said. "Father, you remember Mr. Peale? Peale, my father?"

"Indeed, yes, I recall very well," began Peale effusively.

Mr. Martin gruffly cut him off. "How are you?" he said.

"A bit tired," said Peale, sitting down comfortably; "just back from Buffalo, where we're conducting a big campaign."

"Is that so?" said Martin, senior, crustily.

"Perhaps you've heard about it?" inquired Rodney, looking at his father.

"No. Why should I hear about it?" said that gentleman for Peale's benefit especially.

"I don't know," said Peale helplessly. "You see, Mr. Peale handles all our advertising, and perhaps"—began Rodney.

"Oh, he does, does he?" said Mr. Martin dangerously. "Then it is to him I should address myself."

"Either or both of us," chirped Rodney.

"Then both of you listen to me," Martin began. "You've got to cut out this nonsense you call advertising!"

"What nonsense?" asked Rodney.

"Yes, what?" echoed Peale weakly.

"This morning there was a parade of sandwich men in front of my house for two hours," Mr. Martin went on indignantly. "I had to have them arrested. I got to the office to find another bunch. It annoys me."

"I'm sorry, father," said Rodney.

"You're trying to make a fool of me," said his father. "I open a letter. It's a circular for 13 Soap. I open my newspaper; you have a page ad. I look out of the window; there's a billboard. I take a train; the porter apologizes because he's all out of 13 Soap."

"Well, of course, all that proves how wonderful our publicity is," said Rodney bravely.

"You're a grand young bluff, my son," said Martin grimly.

"Why, father, what do you mean?"

"I'll tell you exactly what I mean. I've let you ramble on to see just how far you would go, but you've been spending a lot of money advertising, hoping that by annoying me I'd buy out your business to get rid of you. Well, I'm not going to. Now what have you got to say to that?"

"Nothing—absolutely nothing," said Peale, taking heart again, and Rodney resumed quickly.

"But I have a lot to say. We may not have a big business now, but we have got a trademark—the catchiest trademark ever invented for soap. We're a growing concern. Just because our advertising annoys you you mustn't think it's valueless. Why, it's so good that capital is chasing us. Our money is practically unlimited. Is that a fair statement, Peale?"

"Very fair, very fair, indeed," agreed Peale, dazed at Rodney's daring.

"Bluff, son, bluff," Mr. Martin repeated.

"Not at all," protested Rodney, "and since you're so skeptical, father, I don't mind letting you see the plans for our new factory. These are the offices. Here is the power house, and this is my office, and here is Mr. Peale's."

"Aren't you going to make any soap? Who's putting up the money?"

"Now, father," said Rodney reprovingly, "you cannot expect me to divulge a business secret to you, a rival manufacturer."

"Oh, why not tell him. He is your father," said Peale nobly.

"Well, Peale, if you really think it's wise," said Rodney.

"Oh, yes, I think it's quite wise," said Peale.

"It's the Andover Soap people," declared Rodney boldly.

Mr. Martin was at once impressed and annoyed.

"The Andover Soap people," he repeated, flicking the ash from his cigar.

"Yes, the Andover Soap people," echoed Peale, rubbing it in.

"You mean John Clark?" asked Mr. Martin, getting out of his chair.

"Yes," said Rodney.

"Absolutely," said Peale.

Mr. Martin turned and reflectively walked up and down. Peale very obviously picked up a push button and pushed the buzzer twice. There was a pause, and then in a moment Ellery Clark stuck his head through a door on the left. Mr. Martin did not know it, but this was all by prearrangement with Ellery. Peale, when he had come in just now, was fresh from tutoring Ellery in a little speech. The idea was to impress Mr. Martin overpoweringly on the subject of the Clark family's connection with the new factory. But Ambrose was, to tell the truth, a little nervous as to Ellery's ability to overpower the soap magnate. Ellery's first idea, too, seemed to be of bolting.

"Oh, excuse me. I didn't know your father was here," he began politely.

"That's all right, Ellery," said Rodney very genially.

"Yes, come right in," said Peale. Ellery came in.

"How do you do, Mr. Martin?" he inquired.

"How are you, Ellery?" Mr. Martin responded gruffly.

He didn't like all this, but what was the matter with Ellery?

"Well, I really can't wait any longer," began that youth. "The party downstairs in the taxi—you follow me?"

"Yes, Ellery, you told us that," said Peale, shutting him off.

"Well, goodbye, then," said Ellery. "Was that all you came in to say?" Rodney took him up hastily, looking at Peale, and Peale added sharply:

"Yes. Have you decided about that deal?"

Ellery's mouth fell open, and a look came over his face as of one remembering a lesson.

"Oh, of course. If you'll keep it open until Monday I'll have the money for you then," he said.

"But we can't wait till Monday," said Rodney.

"But Mr. Peale told me"—Ellery answered, puzzled.

Peale came quickly to his rescue. "We'll see what we can do, but just now, Ellery, we're very much occupied."

Ellery looked at the two men, and then he turned and walked out.

Peale came quickly to his rescue. "We'll see what we can do, but just now, Ellery, we're very much occupied."

"Ellery talks too much," said Rodney when Peale came back.

"He is very indiscreet," Peale agreed. "If it had been anybody but your father he'd have given our whole plan away."

"What's he doing here—acting for his father?" inquired Mr. Martin. His ideas of Ellery were undergoing a change.

"Absolutely," said Peale.

"You're not going to take him in," said Mr. Martin, "that pinhead? Why, he didn't even seem to know what he was trying to get at."

"No, he didn't, did he?" agreed Peale. "But, after all, he does represent Andover soap," said Rodney.

"Great soap, Andover—ninety-nine and fifty-seven hundredths per cent pure," said Peale.

Mr. Martin grunted. There was something funny here, some kind of play acting, though he couldn't quite make out what it was. Old Clark's Ellery was a fool; you could see that with your eyes shut. Yet a fool made a good go-between sometimes, and you never could tell what John Clark would be up to. Ellery sounded for all the world as if he were trying to recite some piece that Rodney and that fellow Peale had taught him. And yet what did he happen to be doing there in the 13 Soap company's offices? That couldn't have been prearranged. John Clark was up to anything.

HENRY FORD'S PEACE MISSION

Overflow Provided For on Good Ship Oscar II.

New York, Nov. 29.—So many persons want to go on Henry Ford's peace ship that cabin accommodation is already being booked on the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII, for the overflow from the good ship Oscar II.

It is not the actual numbers that make a second peace transport inevitable; it's the trouble making arrangements. Nothing could be more astonishing than the number of invited guests who cannot go themselves but who know people that Mr. Ford ought really, in justice to himself and his enterprise, to take along. There appears also to be a considerable number of inhabitants of the United States who were not invited to sail.

These thoughtful persons are sending telegrams to Mr. Ford. Most of them are promptly invited to go on the trip, and so far as known not a single one had declined.

ASKS $30,000 FOR SLANDER

Lawyer Sues Member of Commercial Club; Outgrowth of Rate Case.

Noblesville, Ind., Nov. 29.—William V. Rooker filed suit here against several members of the Carmel Commercial Club, asking $30,000 damages for alleged defamation of character. The defendants are Charles Y. Foster, Dr. Frank C. Hershey, John E. Clark, Edward B. Murphy, Robert L. Follett, Fred Johnson, Roscoe C. Mann, Roy Puckett and Isaac N. Beeson.

In his complaint Rooker offers to reduce his demand for damages to a nominal sum if the defendants will appear in court before the beginning of the trial and make proper retraction. The case is the outgrowth of a suit tried at Lebanon a few weeks ago, in which Rooker sued the members of the Carmel Commercial Club for attorney's fee. He alleged the club engaged his services to obtain a lower traction rate between Carmel and Indianapolis.

FORD TELLS OF HIS PLANS

Declares There Has Been Opposition to Peace Efforts.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 29.—Henry Ford returned from New York after a busy week in preparation for the opening of a neutral conference in Europe that would stand as a court to which the warring nations might turn as a medium of negotiation for peace. He spoke of his plans, his hopes and his determination.

"I will go to Europe on the Oscar II and before I return something will have started toward peace, is my hope. Out of the trenches by Christmas is not a boast—it is a prayer—a prayer that all the world joins in," said Mr. Ford at his Dearborn home.

"There has been opposition, unscrupulous and determined, but that is the stuff that makes men fight for the right and the right this time is peace."

R. P. Skinner Returns to Post.

New York, Nov. 29.—Robert P. Skinner, consul general for the United States at London, sailed for London on the steamship Ryndam. Mr. Skinner is returning to his post after having spent two weeks in the United States on leave of absence.

Thousands have this disease—and don't know it

You may be afflicted with that dread disease of the teeth, pyorrhea, and not be aware of it. It is the most general disease in the world! The germ which causes it inhabits every human mouth—your mouth, and is constantly trying to start its work of destruction there.

Don't wait until the advanced stages of the disease appear in the form of bleeding gums, tenderness in chewing and loose teeth. You can begin now to ward off these terrible results. Accept the advice dentists everywhere are giving, and take special precautions by using a local treatment in your daily toilet.

To meet this need for local treatment and to enable everyone to take the necessary precautions against this disease, a prominent dentist has put his own prescription before the public in the convenient form of Senreco Tooth Paste.

Senreco contains the best corrective and preventive for pyorrhea known to dental science. Used daily it will successfully protect your teeth from this disease. Senreco also contains the best harmless agent for keeping the teeth clean and white. It has a refreshing flavor and leaves a wholesomely clean, cool and pleasant taste in the mouth.

Start the Senreco treatment tonight—full details in the folder wrapped around every tube.

Symptoms described. A 25c two oz. tube is sufficient for six or eight weeks of the pyorrhea treatment. Get Senreco at your druggists today, or send 4c in stamps or coin for sample tube and folder. Address The Sental Remedies Co., 504 Union Central Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

DOCTOR DEAD OF HIS WOUNDS

Dr. W. F. Myers Accidentally Shot in Abdomen When Hunting.

Ft. Wayne, Ind., Nov. 29.—Dr. William F. Myers, age forty-five, who was shot in the abdomen when hunting in Kosciusko county by the accidental discharge of his gun, died in a Ft. Wayne hospital.

Dr. Myers was a single man, but kept a cottage at Barbee lake, where he frequently entertained stag parties of hunt-loving friends. While watching the chase of a rabbit from a stump, he permitted his gun to slip from his hands while cocked. The shot penetrated the intestines and tore a six-inch hole in the muscles.

FILE SUIT TO OUST MAYOR

Greensburg (Ind.) Executive Charged With Malfeasance.

Greensburg, Ind., Nov. 29.—Dissatisfaction with the administration of Mayor James E. Mendenhall has reached a crisis with the filing of an affidavit in the circuit court by Jacob Vantresse, a former city employee, charging the mayor with malconduct and malfeasance.

This affidavit is the culmination of a series of charges made against the present administration by citizens and committees appointed by the Law Enforcement league.

BOY-ED IS NOT CONSIDERED FACTOR IN CONSPIRACY

Admission is Made by Government Attorney When Answer is Demanded by Defense.

By United Press.

New York, November 29.—The government was forced to admit that it does not consider Captain Boy-Ed, German naval attaché, a conspirator with the Hamburg-American officials in the scheme to furnish German warships with supplies from American ports. The admission was wrung from Assistant District Attorney Wood after a wordy battle in the trial of the steamship line officials. Attorney Ramd for the defendants objected to further introduction of evidence regarding a steamer with which Boy-Ed was said to have been connected.

"We demand to know what position the government takes regarding Captain Boy-Ed. Come out of the woods with it! Does the government consider Boy-Ed in this case?"

"We do not," said Wood, "but we are using all evidence necessary to bring out our contention. At the same time we are not using any names where it is not necessary."
